WINCHESTER, August 2.—The annual Fishers Hill reunion of Confederate veterans, inaugurated more than thirty years ago by Stover Camp, U. C. V. of Strasburg, Va., which eventually became an event of interest in several States, was held today on the historic Civil War battlefield at Fishers Hill, Shenandoah County. The attendance of veterans was much smaller than in former years, owing to the increased death rate among the old soldiers, while many others were too feeble and infirm to undertake the trip. It was estimated, however, that approximately 1,500 veterans were present. The crowd of visitors exceeded 10,000. The principal address was made by Harry St. George Tucker, of Lexington, Va., former Congressman from the Tenth Virginia district and a noted constitutional lawyer. Music was furnished by a band of forty pieces. An old-time Virginia dinner was served free to all veterans in uniform or wearing their crosses of honor.

Farmers' Institute.—The purpose of the Farmers' Institute at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va., August 2, was to bring together the leading farmers and farm women of the State for a discussion of the problems of agriculture, and to get in close touch with the leaders in the agricultural development of Virginia. The program will be given jointly by the leaders of the Farmers' Institute, members of the extension division, staff, faculty of the agricultural college and experiment station, and men and women of national reputation. Arrangements have been made for the visitors to use the dormitories of the college for sleeping quarters, and to use the dining hall for meals. The program will include a series of lectures, and a series of practical demonstrations. Bruns, of the State Board of Health, will come from Richmond with a special message to the people of Smithfield, and a general clean up of town and country as the best means of reaching the root of good health. The program that large audiences will greet him. The County Board of Health and the health department are co-operating in the movement, and a series of diagnostic clinics which is to begin with clinic appointments at Smithfield will offer to every individual who may need it a free examination of heart and lungs by experts who specialize on these examinations. Inasmuch as tuberculosis is a preventable disease that can be easily controlled, if it is diagnosed early at its first onset, the free chest examinations offer an unusual opportunity, to all.

Baptists Elect Officers.—The James River Association of Baptists met to annual session with the Chestnut Baptist Church, Buckingham County, July 29 to 31. Many additions by baptism were reported by a number of the churches. The association was 115. Secretary R. D. Garland, of the State Board of Missions, addressed the association on the $75,000,000 campaign, and the movement was heartily approved by the assembly. R. D. Taylor was again chosen moderator, and D. W. Charlton was re-elected clerk.

To Establish Office.—A branch of the office of the Internal Revenue Collector for the Western District of Virginia is to be established here if recommendations made by Collector Persinger, of Roanoke, are favorably acted upon according to a letter received from him by H. H. Byrd, because of the large amount of money paid by Winchester and Frederick County people on incomes and other Federal taxes, the need of a branch office here has been apparent for some time.

Dr. Peters stated that with the application of nation-wide prohibition the nature of the work of his department has been somewhat changed, and the necessity for the greatest activity has been shifted from Eastern Virginia to the Blue Ridge and beyond.
